1. Summary

In the summer of 2013, an old suitcase from the Holocaust was found in an attic in a small and old apartment in Mainz, Germany. The suitcase was full of old pictures, letters and old family documents. My family research began by helping my mother understand those German documents. The picture that began to clear up from these materials was that Max Einstein (my great-grandmother's brother) studied the extended family during the Holocaust in order to rescue them from the Nazis. A rescue that unfortunately did not succeed. Helene nee Einstein and her husband Josef Simon left the important documents at Max apartment. The apartment in Mainz was their last stop before the death camp. Max (1895-1954), who survived the Holocaust, hid it at the attic of his house in Mainz. The family documents that were later found after the death of his only daughter (Liana) in the summer of 2013.

The family study brings to life the family that was mostly wiped out in the Holocaust. While working on my mother's family research, I was asked by my father (Menashe) to investigate his side, which was partly a mystery. This book was written primarily informally And contains a collection and documentation of the family genealogical I found during the research. The extended family tree that was found and built includes about fifteen hundred family members. This book will present mainly the materials of the direct ancestry line.

2.2. Introduction

As noted, in the summer of 2013 a suitcase of old documents was found by my mother in Germany. The suitcase was found in the attic of Liana's (1927-2013) apartment, which died in Mainz. Liana was Max's daughter, and my grandfather's (Alfred Simon 1915-1987) cousin. The suitcase contained personal family documents[1] that survived the Holocaust, some of them belonging to Helene Simon nee. Einstein and her husband Josef Hermann Simon (my Great Grandparents) who deported by the Gestapo on 27.9.1942 from Max's home in Mintz to Theresienstadt. Hermann died on February 14, 1943 in Theresienstadt, And Helene was sent on May 16, 1944 to the gas chambers in Auschwitz.

In the suitcase that was brought to Israel, documents were found with unusual family and historical material. The materials also contain a draft of a family tree composed in 1939 and included one branch that goes back 10 generations. Some family members documented in the materials died in the Holocaust and were unknown to the family (and not to Yad Vashem). The material and especially the family tree was so impressive that I decided to study it as much as possible. For a few months (at the end of 2013) the tree was significantly expanded. This chapter is dedicated to the Helene nee. Einstein family side from the town of Ichenhausen in Bavaria and is based mainly on Max's materials.

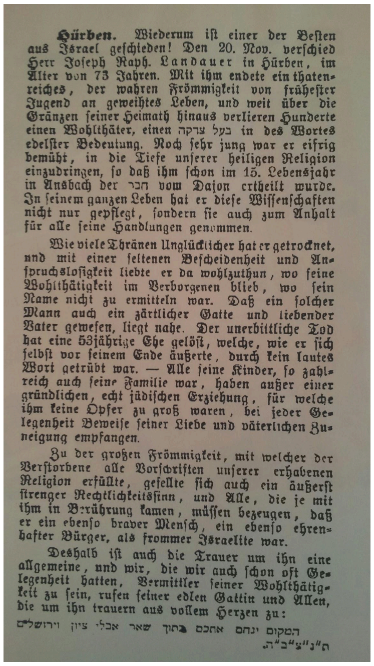
2.28. The Gravestone[2,34] of Joseph Landauer (b. 23.5.1804 Hürben d. 20.11.1877 Hürben) the son of Rafael Landauer In the Jewish cemetery in Hurbin-Krombach. Joseph was Karoline Neuburger father.

2.29. The inscription on Joseph's grave and the obituary published on Joseph, and the details of his and his father house (delivered at a meeting with a local researcher Herbert Auer[6], who published a book about the Jews of Hürben)



Hürben. Wiederum iſt einer der Beſten aus Iſrael geſchieden! Den 20. Nov. verſchied Herr Joſeph Raph. Landauer in Hürben, im Alter von 73 Jahren. Mit ihm endete ein thatenreiches, der wahren Frömmigkeit von frühester Jugend an geweihtes Leben, und weit über die Gränzen ſeiner Heimath hinaus verlieren Hunderte einen Wohlthäter, einen בעל צדקה in des Wortes edelſter Bedeutung. Noch ſehr jung war er eifrig bemüht, in die Tiefe unſerer heiligen Religion einzudringen, ſo daß ihm ſchon im 15. Lebensjahr in Ansbach der חבר vom Dajon ertheilt wurde. In ſeinem ganzen Leben hat er dieſe Wiſſenſchaften nicht nur gepflegt, ſondern ſie auch zum Anhalt für alle ſeine Handlungen genommen.

Wie viele Thränen Unglücklicher hat er getrocknet, und mit einer ſeltenen Beſcheidenheit und Anſpruchsloſigkeit liebte er da wohlzuthun, wo ſeine Wohlthätigkeit im Verborgenen blieb, wo ſein Name nicht zu ermitteln war. Daß ein ſolcher Mann auch ein zärtlicher Gatte und liebender Vater geweſen, liegt nahe. Der unerbittliche Tod hat eine 53jährige Ehe gelöſt, welche, wie er ſich ſelbſt vor ſeinem Ende äußerte, durch kein lautes Wort getrübt war. — Alle ſeine Kinder, ſo zahlreich auch ſeine Familie war, haben außer einer gründlichen, echt jüdiſchen Erziehung, für welche ihm keine Opfer zu groß waren, bei jeder Gelegenheit Beweiſe ſeiner Liebe und väterlichen Zuneigung empfangen.

Zu der großen Frömmigkeit, mit welcher der Verſtorbene alle Vorſchriften unſerer erhabenen Religion erfüllte, geſellte ſich auch ein äußerſt ſtrenger Rechtlichkeitsſinn, und Alle, die je mit ihm in Berührung kamen, müſſen bezeugen, daß er ein ebenſo braver Menſch, ein ebenſo ehrenhafter Bürger, als frommer Iſraelite war.

Deshalb iſt auch die Trauer um ihn eine allgemeine, und wir, die wir auch ſchon oft Gelegenheit hatten, Vermittler ſeiner Wohlthätigkeit zu ſein, rufen ſeiner edlen Gattin und Allen, die um ihn trauern aus vollem Herzen zu:

Wo haben sie gewohnt?

Am 12. Dez. 1822 kaufte Raphael Löb Landauer das Haus Nr. 162 (heute Heinrich-Sinz- Str. 28) von Joseph Anton Jäckle um 3500 Gulden.

Joseph Raphael Landauer erbte das Haus nach Brief vom 26. Juni 1857 mit einer Auflage von 400 Gulden. Die Wiesen und Äcker wurden zum Haus Nr. 149 (Landauer- Haus) gezogen.

Nach dem Tod von Joseph Raphael Landauer erbten die 4 Söhne das Haus und zwar so dass Leopold, der in Ulm wohnte, das ½ Haus erbte und die andere Hälfte die drei anderen Söhne zu gleichen Teilen. Die Mutter hatte das Wohnrecht auf Lebzeit und das Haus sollte nach dem Testament nicht verkauft werden darf. Doch die Mutter zog zu ihren Kindern nach Frankfurt a.M., wo sie im Jahre 1887 verstarb. Der Wertanschlag lag bei 10 300 Mark.

Nach Verbriefung vom 12. Sept. 1884 verkaufte die Erbengemeinschaft, gegen den Willen des Vaters, das große Wohnhaus um 13 000 Mark an die Witwe Emma Gossner und deren Kinder. Danach war das Haus immer in christlichen Händen.

2.30. Pictures of Joseph Landauer's house in Hürben-Krumbach, Germany (photographed in 2014), house number in the past 149 and today at Heinrich-Sinz-Straße 28, Krumbach. The house was sold by his children in 1884.

2.31. The house pictures (from 2014) of Lob Landauer (father of Joseph's) and in Hürben-Krombach. The old House number was 162 and today the address is Hürbener Straße 15 Krombach. The house today is historical museum.

2.34. The Brettauer and Uffenheimer family from Hohenems, Austria

Helene Einstein family lived[31] for five generations in Ichenhausen. Branches of Helene roots came also from the Einstein family of Harburg, Landauer family of Hürben and Brettauer and Uffenheimer family of Hohenems. The special information of the family roots from Hohenems comes from Aaron Tänzer[9] who was the rabbi of Hohenems (1896-1905) who wrote a comprehensive book 1905 on the families of the town. Its relevant parts will be the following images. The family tree from Hohenems is also accessible online at[8] the Jewish Heritage site of the town: www.hohenemsgenealogie.at 2.36. The family Branches of Helene grandmother Henrietta nee. Einstein is from Ederheim. It was extended 2 generations back through the information of the local book of the Jewish communities at[2] jgbs.org/ and from information of Rolf Hofmann Collection[10] 2005 (based on the tombstones of Ederheim, In the local Jewish cemetery in the town of Harburg). Henrietta was the daughter of Moshe Einstein and Jendel Wheeler. Moshe was the son of Abraham Einstein Hannah. Jendel was the daughter of Hirsch Emanuel Weiler and Riza. One example of old family record from Ederheim is the death record of Abraham Einstein (Henrietta's father) died on 19.4.1828 at the age of 66.

2.37. The old gravestone of Moshe Einstein (sent by Rolf Hofmann[10] who investigated the cemetery in Harburg). Harburg cemetery Includes the graves of two nearby communities: Harburg and Ederheim

Gef. No. 25338

Konzentrationslager Dachau 3 K

Folgende Anordnungen sind beim Schriftverkehr mit Gefangenen zu beachten:

1.) Jeder Schutzhaftgefangene darf im Monat zwei Briefe oder zwei Karten von seinen Angehörigen empfangen und an sie absenden. Die Briefe an die Gefangenen müssen gut lesbar mit Tinte geschrieben sein und dürfen nur 15 Zeilen auf einer Seite enthalten. Gestattet ist nur ein Briefbogen normaler Größe. Briefumschläge müssen ungefüttert sein. In einem Briefe dürfen nur 5 Briefmarken à 12 Pfg. beigelegt werden. Alles andere ist verboten und unterliegt der Beschlagnahme. Postkarten haben 10 Zeilen. Lichtbilder dürfen als Postkarten nicht verwendet werden.

2.) Geldsendungen sind gestattet.

3.) Zeitungen sind gestattet, dürfen aber nur durch die Poststelle des K. L. Dachau bestellt werden.

4.) Pakete dürfen nicht geschickt werden, da die Gefangenen im Lager alles kaufen können.

5.) Entlassungsgesuche aus der Schutzhaft an die Lagerleitung sind zwecklos.

6.) Sprecherlaubnis und Besuche von Gefangenen im Konz.-Lager sind grundsätzlich nicht gestattet.

Alle Post, die diesen Anforderungen nicht entspricht, wird vernichtet.

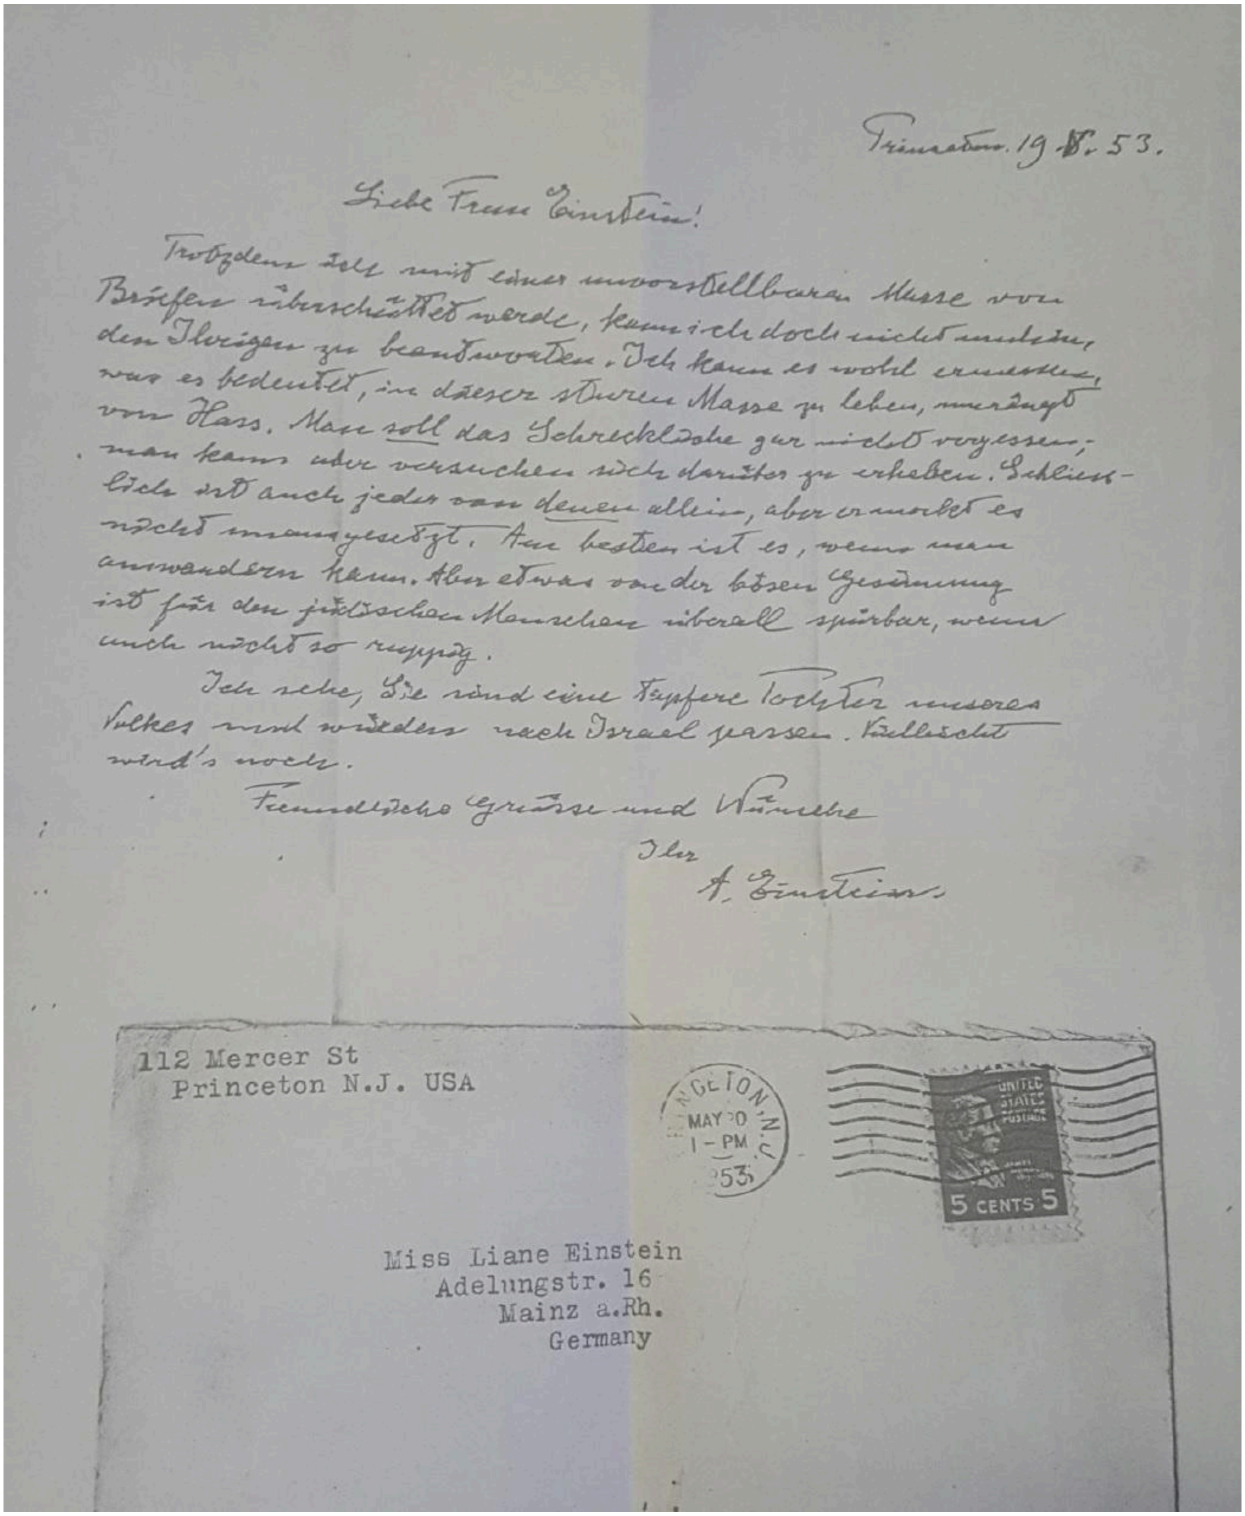
2.42. A German translation of documentation that Max wrote[1] (apparently from his experience in the Holocaust), With an accusing headline

For the "naive" people in Germany who "did not want to know"

1. Jews should wear their name (eg Sarah, Israel ...)
2. Jews are forbidden to leave the house after 9 PM in the summer and after 8 PM in the winter. They must present their identity to a German.
3. Jews are forbidden to go to theater, cinema or other shows
4. The Jews must hand over their passports and must not leave the country. They must carry identification papers proving that they are Jews
5. All the property of the Jews is confiscated and they can receive a monthly sum. If a person dies, the inheritance goes to the state and not to the children or spouse
6. Jews are forbidden to have any contact with Aryans
7. Jews will be judged by the Gestapo and not by the courts. They should not take a lawyer and the only punishment would be a concentration camp
8. Jews are prohibited from using precious metal jewelry, as well as radio, cameras, furs, bicycles, typewriters, electrical appliances, floppy disks, and only their existing clothing.
9. Jews are forbidden to accept meat, milk, eggs, white bread, shaving cream or a razor, and things like that.
10. The Jews do not receive ration cards for clothes
11. Jews are forbidden to hold any type of servants, cleaning clothes or a house
12. The laws of tenant protection do not apply to Jews, and every day you can be taken out of the house.
13. Jews are forbidden to travel freely
14. Jews are forbidden to use the train and any other transportation.
15. The Jews should wear a yellow Star of David on clothes, and hang at the entrance to the house
16. Jews are forbidden to use descriptive descriptions (eg, Dr., Attorney, ...)
17. The Jews can not receive the services of German lawyers
18. Jews are forbidden to receive income from property
19. Jews must not have a vehicle
20. The Jews must not have a telephone
21. Jews are not allowed to go to schools
22. Jews must not sell their things
23. Jews should be dismissed from institutions
24. Jews should give a quarter of their property to the state in 1938
25. Jews must pay double the income tax
26. Jews are forbidden to enter stores
27. Jews are not allowed to participate in groups or organizations
28. Jews should not own newspapers or magazines or hold newspapers
29. Jews are forbidden to go to a book or to book a book to their home
30. Jews may not hang notices or serve as witnesses
31. Jews are forbidden to go to hotels and restaurants.
32. Jews must not use institutions or banks
33. Jews are forbidden to hold an animal (eg, a cat, a cat)
34. The Jews are not allowed to use the bomb shelters, and if they are already there to maintain separation and evacuation, to let the Germans leave first
35. Jews are forbidden to receive treatment from a German doctor
36. Jews should leave their professions and engage in the simplest jobs. They are not allowed to work overtime

2.43. A letter from Albert Einstein to Liana Einstein dated May 19, 1953, Found in Max's suitcase[1].



Princeton. 19. V. 53.

Liebe Frau Einstein!

Trotzdem ich mit einer unvorstellbaren Masse von Briefen überschüttet werde, kann ich doch nicht umhin, den Ihrigen zu beantworten. Ich kann es wohl ermessen, was es bedeutet, in dieser sturen Masse zu leben, umringt von Hass. Man soll das Schreckliche gar nicht vergessen; man kann aber versuchen sich darüber zu erheben. Schliesslich ist auch jeder von denen allein, aber er merkt es nicht unausgesetzt. Am besten ist es, wenn man auswandern kann. Aber etwas von der bösen Gesinnung ist für den jüdischen Menschen überall spürbar, wenn auch nicht so üppig.

Ich sehe, Sie sind eine tapfere Tochter unseres Volkes und würden nach Israel passen. Vielleicht wird's noch.

Freundliche Grüsse und Wünsche

Ihr

A. Einstein.

Translation of the letter:

Dear Mrs. Einstein,

although I keep getting avalanches of letters, I cannot help but answer yours. I can imagine what it means to live among those stubborn masses, surrounded by hatred. One should not forget the horrible events of the past, but one can try to raise above them. In the end, each and everyone of them is alone, they just do not notice it all the time. The best thing would be to try to emigrate, but some of the negative attitude towards Jews is everywhere, just not as noticable.
I see you as a brave daughter of our Nation and you would fit into Israel. Maybe it will happen.
Best regards and wishes

yours
A. Einstein

2.44. Translation of the letter Liana sent to Albert on May 1, 1953. The letter is in the Albert Einstein Archives[42] at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem.

Dear Prof. Einstein,

i hope you will not mind my writing to you. I am turning to you, a co-religionist and emigrant, for advice. You, dear Prof. Einstein, are not only a great thinker and physicist, but you also see yourself as a fighter for humanism.
I am Jewish and I was born on 22.7.27 in Ulm/ Donau. My childhood and teens coincided with the time of the Nazi aggression. As if through a miracle. my parents and I were spared the deportation. What all this meant for me. during the years of my youth and personal development can only be understood by someone who experienced something similar.
For the past 2 years I have been working at the telephone office in Mainz. I obtained this position solely because of my past persecution by the Nazi regime.
This past with all its suffering and its humiliations is still so present to me that i have great difficulties establishing any reasonable connection to my surroundings. The atmosphere in Germany has mostly remained unchanged. The tendencies of the Nazi way of thinking are still in the air. I always have to push myself to express my own stand. As soon as my name „Einstein“ is mentioned, the connection is drawn with the great physicist. This same name automatically leads to making a connection between me and Judaism.
I am not a person who wants pity nor who expects compensation. But I also do not want to be impeded by things of the past. It is impossible to speak against a majority who was so convinced by its mission and who in part still is convinced. Of course there is such a thing as thoughts and freedom of speech, but whoever is not with the group is against it, and we are back to the same isolation that one should strive to avoid.. Should one attempt to forget and remain silent, or should one emigrate and then start a new life as a person who has achieved inner freedom?
I am writing to you because of an article of he „Allgemeine Wochenzeitung der Juden in Deutschland“ (which appeared on March 27) in which you gave an interview to the representative of the New York Times in Princeton entitled „About Real Humanism“. Let me congratulate you on your birthday of March 14th. May you, revered Prof. Einstein, keep being blessed with luck, and may your science be a blessing to all humanity.
Greetings to you, revered professor, from a person in Germany who shares your name.
It might be of interest to you that my grandmother was born Einstein from Laufenheim near Ulm.

2.45. From a letter[42] by Max Einstein to Albert Einstein dated Feb 20, 1939. Can read "My grandfather comes from Kleinnördlingen/Bavaria, whose ancestors came from Buchau (Wrttbg). I know that you, dear Professor, are also from Buchau, or am I mistaken? My research here is difficult. It is very indiscreet, but perhaps you can explain this to me, Professor?". I'm not sure it's accurate, maybe it's a desperate step. and can read "SOS" call, this is an example of Max's desperate for help. Albert's answer could not be found.

3.1.2. introduction

Alfred Simon was born 28.4.1915 to Joseph Hermann Simon and Helene nee. Einstein in the town of Pirminsen, Germany, he was their only child. The day after Kristallnacht (when he was 23 year old) he was arrested and deported to Dachau[31]. Upon his release from Dachau after three months he escape[31] to the Netherlands and from there to the United States. Alfred told the story of his life in an long interview that was documented[31], So Alfred story here will be limited.

In the United States, Alfred met and married Alfreda nee. Brunn, and had five children. One daughter Judy Kamm made aliyah to Israel and Four of ather children & their afflictions live in the United States to this day. Alfred & Alfreda immigrated to Israel at the 80's. Alfred died on July 17, 1987. He was buried in Hebron Cemetery.

Juden in Pirmasens

Spuren ihrer Geschichte

Stadt Pirmasens (Hrsg.)

an erster und zweiter Stelle der Postverwalter Nikolaus Klein und der Bäckermeister Max Albrecht, an dritter Stelle folgt Max Wolff. Sie führen einen erfolgreichen Wahlkampf, denn insgesamt schaffen fünf DDP-Räte den Einzug in den Stadtrat.[11] Max Wolff engagiert sich 1922 im Bau- und Polizeisenat.[12] Nach der Reichspogromnacht 1938 wird Max Wolff verhaftet und anschließend ins KZ Dachau verbracht, wo er stirbt.

Der Schwerkriegsbeschädigte Josef Hermann Simon saß für die Sozialdemokraten im Stadtparlament. Aufnahme um 1938.

Als Stadtrat amtierte der Buchhalter Josef Hermann Simon (SPD?), der im Ersten Weltkrieg ein Bein verlor.[13] Simon, der bis mindestens 1936 zusammen mit seiner Frau Helene und seinem Sohn Alfred in der Teichstraße 25 wohnte, zog nach Mainz, wo er und seine Familie in der Wohnung seines Schwagers Max Einstein Unterschlupf fand. Im September 1942 wurde das Ehepaar nach Theresienstadt deportiert, wo Josef Hermann Simon im Februar 1943 starb. Helene Simon wurde nach Auschwitz deportiert, Sohn Alfred Simon war es 1939 gelungen in die USA zu emigrieren.[14]

Der Schuhgrossist A. W. Hofmann war 1919/20 Vorstand der Kultusgemeinde und als Stadtrat im Friedhof-Ausschuss tätig.[15] Zum 23köpfigen Stadtrat zählte zur selben Zeit wie Hofmann 1919/1920 der Privatmann und Teilhaber an der Lederfabrik Drexler & Frank, Karl Frank. Frank, der 1899—1907 Vorsitzender der „Chebra Kadischah" war, gehörte dem Ratsgremium seit mindestens 1911 an. Während Frank 1911 Mitglied im städtischen Grund- und Viehbesitzer-Ausschuss und Museums-Ausschuss war, engagierte er sich 1919/20 im Schlachthof-Ausschuss.[16] Während Karl Frank Es ist anzunehmen, dass er sich als Mitglied des Schlachthof-Ausschusses auch für die Belange der jüdischen Metzger und das Schächten einsetzte.

Joseph Simon and Judith Alexander from Grosbliederstroff (town today in France on the border with Germany, Before the First World War in German territory). A search (JewishGen Burial Registry) of the town's old burial lists Joseph and Judith had a large family.

3.1.26. Joseph Simon and Judith Alexander from Grosbliederstroff

From the JewishGen Burial Registry the Death of Joseph Simon (Simon Joseph) was 11.3.1812 with the namesof his parents: Loeb Joseph and Breinlen Lazard. In the children's Mendel and Lazard death records can be seen once used "Joseph" as the private name and sometimes used "Simon" as a private name.

3.1.30. Additional discovered in 2023 on May family from Innsbruck

Toward trip to Innsbruck in Sep. 2023, I contacted the local archive and asked if they knew any information about the Jowish Abraham May in the city from the 17th-18th century. To my surprise, I received a lot of information from a number of local researchers, when I got there I also met them. It turns out that they recently researched and wrote books about the "May" family in the city, this is the summary of the extensive information given to me for another 5 generations I didn't know.

In 1509, the father of the May family, the Jew Salomon of Bassano, received from the emperor protection and rights to live and trade throughout the Holy Roman Empire. This protection of being a court Jew was renewed and passed down in May family for about 200 years. Salomon and his son May and his grandson Shmuel May lived in northern Italy. In 1578, Shmuel moved to Innsbruck and opened a trading business there, which passed to his son Marx, and passed to his grandsons the brothers Avraham (the older) and Shmuel (the younger), which passed to his great-grandsons (sons of the younger Shmuel) Avraham (the younger) and Michael May. Jonatan Offenheimer who was in a business partnership with Avraham (the younger) married his daughter in the early 1700's and their descendants are discussed above.

3.1.31. Additional discovered in 2025 on family from Ichenhausen Matrikel

In further research on the early Neuburger family from Ichenhausen, three family heads can be identified in the birth and Matrikel records from 1813:

- Seigman (Samuel) Neuburger (1773-1854) & his wife Judith (1773-1841) - The father for further investigation
- Ansel Neuburger (1764-1830) & his wife Judita Wasserman (1778-1845)
  Ansel the Son Of Mayr Model Neuburger & his wife Hendel - family from Harburg
- Elias Neuburger (1735-1824) - Samuel Neuburger potential father to be investigated …

Based on a detailed record of the 1813 Matrikel (168), it is found in the record (from the Augsburg Archives), that Samuel Neuburger was the son of Elias Neuburger (born 1737)!

Elias was married in 1813, and from Elias death record in 1824 it is recorded that he was a widower, so his wife (name unknown) died between the years 1813-1824.

The detailed record of Samuel (old name Seligman) Neuburger (born 1777):

From Samuel Neuburger entry (number 84) ... can also read about his business relationship with Joseph Einstein (their children also married), quote:

Note jointly (to 83 [Joseph Einstein] and 84 [Samuel Neuburger]), They jointly owned the open shop. G(ün)zb(ur)g, July 29, 1821 Have reported today for the record that they have separated and, after matriculation, each operates the open shop separately. G(ün)zb(ur)gden, June 27, 1822. From the other people in the table can learn:
Einstein Simon is likely the father of Joseph Einstein, but there is no definitive proof of this. Simon wife Karolina (b. 1737). Hirsch Simon Einstein (b. 1763), had no children and may have been Joseph Einstein brother.
In additional listings, another Einstein in Ichenhausen: Haium/Heinrich Einstein & his wife Reitz, They had 3 children at 1804-1813, he may also be Joseph's brother.

And with the help of Dr. Claudia, the translation and interpretation of the Record:

House number 295, a two parties house, was purchased by Joseph Einstein and Samuel Neuburger, in 21.6.1798. The former owner was Böhnle Anton, a Christian grocer/shopkeeper.

Joseph Einstein purchased the lower part of the house, wich passed to his Tochtermann (son in law, Joseph Neuburger) in 20.5.1823. The upper part of the house remained in the possession of Samuel Neuburger became widower from 9.7.1841 and died on January 6 in 1854.

House number 182 was also purchased jointly in 1815 by Joseph Einstein und Samuel Neuburger.

Former owner was Oppenheimer Moses. The sale was recorded 1819, 15. Mai. P.S. 7 means Protokollbuch Seite 7. (probably the „Herrschaftsprotokolle“)

In 1835, one half of the house went to Joseph‘s widow, and the Neuburger‘s half went to Moses Mai, Neuburger‘s „Tochtermann“ (husband of the daughter), son in law. In 1842 Heinrich Einstein is the owner of the whole house.

According to Max's records of the birth of Raphael son of Yizhar in the early 1700s, he was in this house
Leah, Raphael's wife, died in 1809 in this house.
The children of Israel (1750-1836), who are Yizhar's grandchildren, were born there between 1787-1795

House 77

Raphae son Joseph was born there in 1804. Raphael's other sons were born there until at least 1813

House 119

Raphael's sons were born there from 1815 onwards. Schenie, Leopold's wife, died there in 1815.
Leopold died there in 1822

House 116

Leopold bought it on 12.12.1822. Yosef Raphael inherited it on 26.6.1857
In 1877 it was inherited by Raphael's 4 sons. In 1884 it was sold by his sons to a Christian man

House 149 + 150

Built by Leopold and his son Raphael in 1799 and they lived there together (the father on the lower floor, the son on the upper floor), after Leopold's and the death of Raphael was sold in 1860.

3.1.34. Additional discovered in 2025 on family from Italy

At the end of 2025, with AI search I revealed for Salomon Bassano an article with a reference to a book of Daniele Carpi[58] from 2002 (in Italian) about the “History of the Jews in Padua and the Veneto region during the Renaissance” (14th-16th). The book contains an unusual family tree about the banking family from northern Italy, whose roots go back to 1380 in the town of Cividale del Friuli. At the tree Salomon da Bassano who lived in Mantua in 1530, exactly according to the findings above.

Daniel's book details an entire chapter about the family depicted in the tree, as well as notary records from references[59] “The Jews in Cividale del Friuli 14th-15th centuries” in which the family Bank transactions are detailed. In the records huge loans are described. For example, in 1397 the family bank loans about 1000 gold ducats (equivalent to 130 years of work for an average worker) were given in exchange for the mortgage of the houses of wealthy Christians. The accepted loans had an annual interest rate of between 15% and 25% per year. The wealth of the family impact the economy. After the conquest of the Padua region by the Republic of Venice in 1405, some of the family's businesses moved to the Padua region. The family spread over generations to several towns in northern Italy, sometimes they ran banks in several towns.

In those days in Italy, the place where a person lived was added after their name, and this is also how you can know their main place of residence:
2nd Generation Marcuzio da Cividale - from Cividale del Friuli - 100 km east of Venezia
3ed Generation Salomone da Piove di Sacco - from Piove di Sacco-15 km southeast of Padua
4ed Marcuzio da Montagnana - from Montagnana - 40 km west of Padua, Italy
5th Salomon da Bassano - from Bassano del Grappa - 40 km north of Padua, Italy

3.2.2. introduction

Elfriede Brunn was born to Leopold and Karoline in Vienna, Austria, on September 15, 1919. Alfrieda had two little sisters. When the Nazi's marched into Vienna, she was 18. After her father was deported to a Dachau concentration camp she managed to obtain a permit to work in England, in this way she managed to escape. Joined her family when they managed also to escape. In the United States she met & married Alfred Simon, where they raised their five children. In the mid-1980s they immigrated to Israel. After Alfred's death, she returned to the United States where she met & married Sam Gerstein, Elfriede died and buried in the USA on 4 December 2002. Elfriede wrote a book on her life story[30], and therefore this documentation about her mainly information to add.

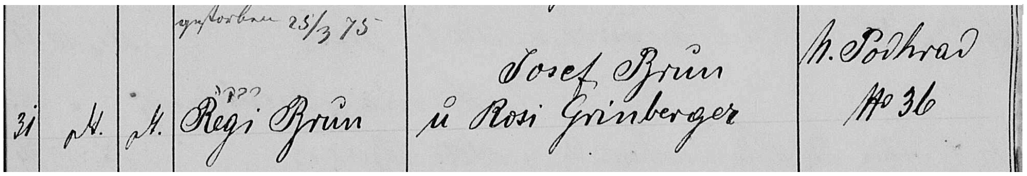
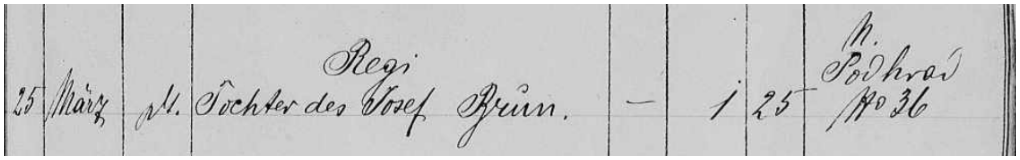
3.2.16.2. Birth record of first child (Regi) of Josef & Rosi

Regi born 31 Jan 1875 and died 25 Marz 1875 at house number 36 N. Podhrad, Slovakia



31	dto	dto	gestorben 25/3 75 Regi Brün	Josef Brün u Rosi Grinberger	N. Podhrad No 36

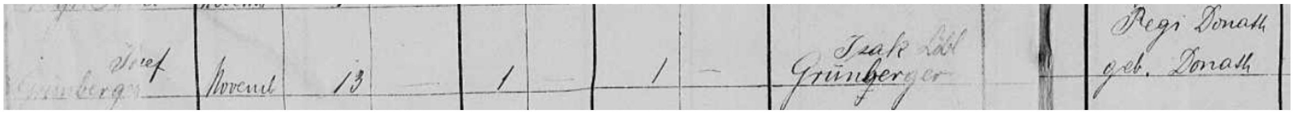


25	März	dto	Regi Tochter des Josef Brün.	—	1	25	N. Podhrad No 36

The next born was Rudolfine born 20 Juni 1876 Uhersky Brod, Czech. Therefore Josef & Rosi moved from Slovakia to Czechia between Mar 1875 to Jun 1876.

3.2.16.3. Rosy's parents

There is uncertainty to the identity of Rosy's parents. The Bošáca records for the year 1848/9 in which Rosi was born are missing. But, it is likely that Rosi's parents are: Isak Lobl Grunberger (1793-1884) and Regi (1813-1867) nee. Donath, since births records of Bošáca town from 1845 to 1851 include no births of any Greenberger family except for the birth of Josef born 13 Nov 1851 to Isak Lobl Greenberger & Regi Donath, attached:



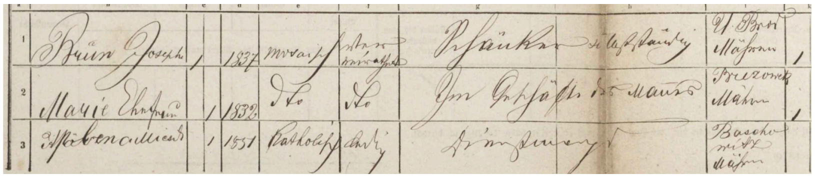
Josef Grünberger	Novemb	13	—	/		/	—	Isak Löbl Grünberger			Regi Donath geb. Donath

Also apparently, Rosi named her first daughter Regi (born 1875) after her mother Regi (died 1867), and her son Leopold (born 1891) after her father Isak Lobl (died 1884).

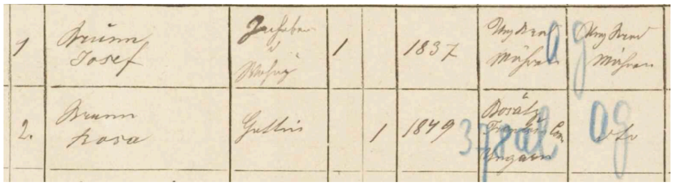
3.2.16.4. Josef Brunn's parents

Josef Brunn's parents not found in Uhersky Brod records.

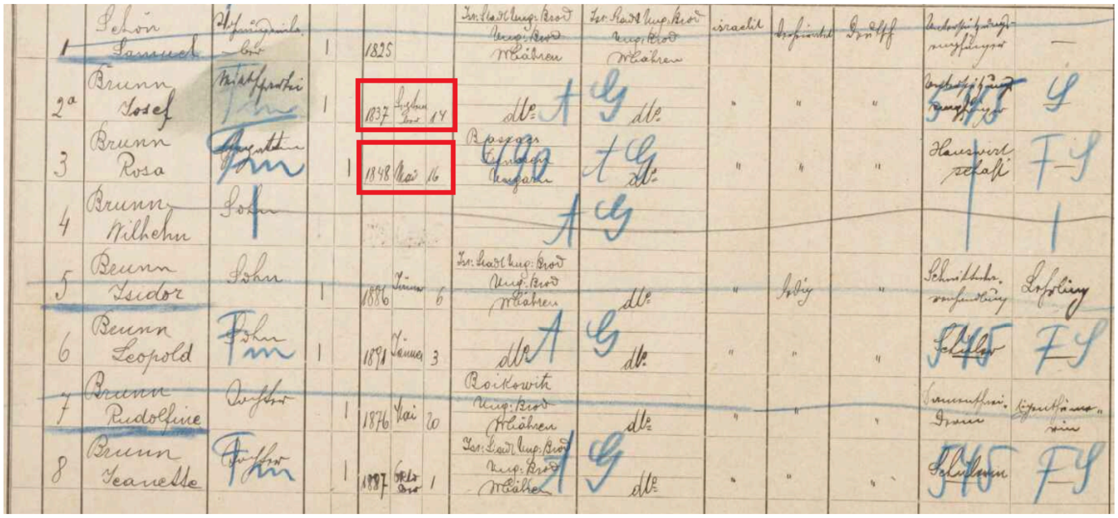
From Uhersky Brod census records 1869 - Josef Brunn born 1837 - link
In this listing, Lived in a nearby town Velký Ořechov. Josef was married to a Marie (b. 1832 Boskovice) and they had a young non-Jewish housekeeper.



From Uhersky Brod census records 1890 - Josef Brunn born 1837 - link
In this listing, house number 41, Josef and Rosie with their 4 children

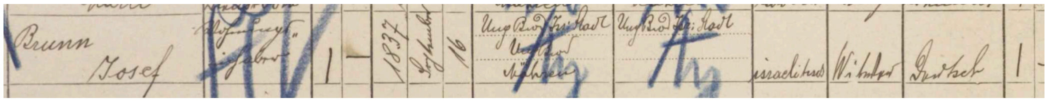


From Uhersky Brod census records 1900 - Josef Brunn born 14 Sep 1837 - link
In this listing, house number 48, Josef and Rosie with their 5 children live with the owner of the apartment (born in 1832) and in the listing the dates of birth Fosef wife Rosi was: 16 May 1848 at Bosaca. (Bosaca records for this year's page are missing).



From Uhersky Brod census records 1910 - Josef Brunn born 16 Sep 1837 (Link)

Ung. Bord In this registry, house number 66, Josef living with 7 members of Adolf Lewy family (at the same time live in Vienna?)



Brunn Josef	[illegible]	1	–	1837	[illegible]	16	Ung. Brod [illegible] Ung. Brod Mähren	Ung. Brod [illegible]	israelitisch	Witwer	Deutsch	1

To complicate, apparently? there are families with similar pronunciations Brunn, Brun, Brün, Brünn, Braunn, Braun, Braün, Brunner, Bruner, Brüner, Brammer, Bramer, Branner, Braüner, Braünner, Braümner, Braümmer...

In the Uhersky Brod birth records for year 1837 can be found (link):

- Baroch Brauner b. 9 Feb 1837 (died? 5 Sep 1837) to Lobl Brauner and Pipi
- Abraham Brammer b. 5 Sep 1837 to Sallomon Brammer and Theresia
- Josef - b. 12 Oct 1837 to Sara Leitner, no father, only witness/patron Lobel Brün
- Noe - Born 26 Nov 1837 to Schwarzel Brauner, no father, patron Lobel Braüner

		Geschlecht		Pathen
9t Feber	Baroch	Löbel Brauner	Pepi	Aron Singer
5 September	Abraham Brauner	Sallomon Brauner	Theresia	[illegible] Rabbiner
12 October	Josef Leitner		Rosa Laitner	Löbel Braun
26 9ber	Noe Brauner [illegible] 36		Schwarzel Brauner	Josef Braüner

To summarize: from the record's the only Josef born in 1837 was born without a father on 12 Oct 1837, his mother's last name was Litner (either by birth or by a previous marriage), the witness/patron there was: Lobel Brün. if Lobel is the witness he may be the grandfather, if he is the patron he may be the father (informal).

In another attempt to find Josef's parents, the following information was sent by Gertrude Malisdorf (nee. Brunn) Leopold's daughter and Joseph's granddaughter: "The husband of Aunt Jenny committed suicide at Vienna because their restaurant failed. Then aunt Jenny move to the US. she had an older sister name Ruth living here. Ruth had a daughter who was crippled but she managed to work for the city. Ruth did dressmaking in her house. When Jenny arrived she looked for relatives and found a cousin, his name was Sigmund. He was a very nice man and even though he did not have much money he sent an affidavid to us which enabled us to come to the US. My mother had no siblings, just some cousins we rarely saw"

From the New York census of 1940, can find Sigmund Brunn b. 1879 Austria and his wife Elsie, as well as Jeanette Brunn b. 1888 Austria the cousin of Sigmund. Can also find information dated Dec 10, 1924 in the issuance of Elsie's passport, the birth details of Sigmund who was born on July 27, 1879. In the search of Uhersky Brod's birth records, the match can be found, when the names of Sigmund's parents appear: David Brunn and Fenni nee Fischer. And this is how I find Josef Brunn brother. Searching the birth records for the appropriate years, can find that David was born on January 15, 1835 in Uhersky Brod House 63, and his parents are: Ephraim Brunn and Cecilia.

In conclusion Based on the combination of the above information, Josef's parents can be: Ephraim Brunn and Cecilia.

There is another birth record in the Uhersky Brod of Ephraim for a child named Samuel Hirsch Brunn who was born in 25 Dec 1839.

No further records of Ephraim Brunn or Cecilia have been found in Uhersky Brod. Going through the marriage records 1810-1840 can find a marriage of Cecilia nee Reich (age 28) to Abraham Brunn (age 28) at 12 Jun 1832, it is possible that Abraham was another name for Ephraim. On January 30, 1840, there is a death record of Avraham Brunn, 38 years old, who was apparently Cecelia's husband.

A question still remains as to why Josef Brunn birth registration does not appear in Uhersky Brod 1837.

3.2.17. The findings on a visit to Vienna in October 2017 (this section was added in the last edition).

3.2.17.1. On October 11, 2017, I visit the Jewish community archive in Vienna (Seitenstettengasse 4, 1010 Wien), got help from Irma Wulz. she find surprisingly the marriage record of the parents of Karoline nee. Tendler. Armin Tendler and his wife Anna nee. Löwy, with their parents. The wedding was in Vienna (and not Czech Republic):

4. My father's side

4.1. My father - Menashe Kamm

4.1.1. introduction

By the request of my father (Menashe Kamm 1935-2014), a research was carried out for the side of my father to build a family tree. The information on my father's side was limited. Mostly included information from a family tree prepared by Menashe cousin Vladimir Hopner[43] in 1990 to the side of Menashe mother died. On his father, Heinz Kamm (1910-1986) he had no information, and with uncertainty about the father's identity. The tree was completed and printed within a few months on the Heinz Kamm sied, discovering cousins and families whose existence was unknown, and the cousins had managed to send by e-mail correspondence that added A lot of information. This part of work written according to chronological order of research events at the beginning 2014.

Menashe was born on 24.10.1935 in Tel Aviv (at the old Hadassah Hospital on Balfour Street 8, or according to Menashe's memory[32] and records in Ein Gedi Hospital, Tel Aviv). His parents: Rosa Kamm nee. Hopner and Haim or Heinz Kamm. He was an only child who grew up alone with his mother. Married on November 30, 1964 in Jerusalem with Judy Simon. Died: 11.7.2014 in Jerusalem, buried in Hebron. Menashe had 10 children, and in his death he left 60 offspring.

4.1.6. A letter (defined as sensitive) was received from the Israel State Archives[14] at the beginning of 2014. The letter describes that Rosa and her husband separated. he returned to Germany and was send to camp. The situation of Rosa and the boy Menashe is not good economically and medically, so far they had many "expenses" for them. The recommendation is to send them to there family in Yugoslavia with discount of pay for the ship.

הנני לבקשך להוציא לנו בהקדם מכתב הנחה לקנית כרטיס
אניה ליגוסלביה לעיר לוינקובצי. כי שם יש לה אחות אשר
רוצה לעזור לה בשעת בצוקתה.
הגב' קם נפרדה מבעלה והוא נסע חזרה לגרמניה ושם הוא
במחנה ההסגר. אנו טפלנו ומטפלים בה עד עתה, היא עלתה
לקופתנו בכספים רבים ואין באפשרותנו להמשיך. ובכללי
העזרה כאן בארץ היא בלי כל תכלית, כי הילד חולני והאם
קשורה מאד אליו ואינה יכולה לעבוד, וגם חלשה ועצבנית, אינה
מסוגלה לעבודה קשה.
הד״ר פבריקנט המטפלת בילד מיעצת לשלוח את הילד תיכף
לחוץ לארץ כי דרוש לו טפול ותנאים מתאימים.
אנו מצרפים את העתק תעודת הרופא.
לתשובתכם החיובית אנו מחכים בהקדם האפשרי.

בכבוד רב,

(ה. גלבר)

היות והמחלה שממנה סובל הילד
הנ״ל היא ממושכת ודורשת טפול מיוחד

הייתי מיעצת לעזור לו לעזב את

בחוץ לארץ הם יותר מתאימים מאשר בארץ.

4.1.14. The registration of the birth of Menashe Kam was issued on April 11, 1962 at Ein Gedi Hospital. The Ein Gedi hospital apparently contained the archival material that had been transferred to it from the old Hadassah Hospital (Street 8, Tel Aviv), which was closed, apparently in preparation for the wedding documents on November 30. The father name on the registration was Haim.

4.1.17. A letter[13] that was classified secret from September 20, 1962. Heinz denies his connection with people in Israel and notes that he also gave the above answer to the consul. it maybe possible to understand that this is not the person who married Rosa and immigrated with her to Israel or denying it. It must have brought Menashe to make sure again in the early 1970s that he went to meet him face-to-face and receive a similar answer from him.

4.2. My grandmother - Roza Kamm nee Hopner

4.2.1. introduction

Rosa was born on August 7, 1899 in the town of Lopatyn in the Galicia region (today Western Ukraine). Her parents Menashe Hopner and Zivia nee. Verschleiser. After Rosa's father Menasseh died at 1920, the family emigrated to Vinkovci, Croatia. Rosa married on June 28, 1934 in Zagreb, Yugoslavia to Heinz Kamm. Immigrated to Israel with him on July 30, 1934. Divorced / separated from him between the years 1934-1936. She gave birth to her only son, Menashe, on 24.10.1935. She died on 9.7.1979 in Kiryat-Arba and was buried in Hebron Jewish Cemetery.

Rosa was the youngest daughter, she had three sisters and one brother:

- Ethel (born 1882) who married Israel Sklaver and had three children lived in the Lviv region of Galicia.
- David (born 1887) married Frieda Blumenstock and had 4 children in Vinkovci, Yugoslavia.
- Frida (born 1891) who married Mordechai Gruber and had three children in Galicia.
- Bruni (born 1893) who married Lazar Kowalski and had one child in Vinkovci, Yugoslavia.

All her brothers and sisters and their spouses, and most of their children died in the Holocaust[43]. Only four nephews were rescued: David children Emil, Lily, and Vlad, and itzhak Gruber and Bernard Kowalski (Mordecai Heruti).

In the years following the Holocaust, Rosa turned to a tracing unit[29] to find survivors in the family. The pictures left in the family were what Rosa brought from Yugoslavia in January 1939. Many details about the family were found on the Pages of Testimony recorded by Rosa at Yad Vashem[12].

In the study of family roots in 2014, Menasseh estimated that none of his cousins still alive. Surprisingly, three cousins were still alive: Emil (born 1917), Waladu (born 1930), Lily (born 1929). They gave more details about the family. On 19.5.2014 Menashe spoke with Emil on the phone for the first time in 47 years (since Emil arrived in Kansas to visit Jonathan's covenant in 1967). In a documentary (two hours) of Spielberg project ("USC Shoah"), Vlado film testimony of two hours on a family that died in the Holocaust. At the beginning of 2014 Menashe watched the film[43,12] at Yad Vashem.

Sara Lipitz was Rosa's cousin, the family connection was not clear, the relationship was found by the help of Sarah's sons (Roni & Vordina Lipitz). Roni said that, Sarah Lipitz helped Rosa in the fifties, found Rosa work in the care of children. Among the children was Roni who remember about the difficult life the children had done to her.

Throughout Rosa was dependent economically on her son Menashe. She had a very difficult and lonely life, she always loved the country and was a Zionist as Manasseh described it[32].

Unfortunately, the details of Menashe Hopner's parents were not found so far.

4.2.9. Menashe Hopner visit to the United States 1910

On the Ellis Island history records[37] found entry of Menashe Hopner to New York arrived from the port of Bremen, Germany on July 26, 1910. Upon arrival from the record he was married and resident of lopatyn, Galicia.
He came to the United States to check whether to immigrate with his family there, he did not see that there were conditions to maintain Jewish life there, so the family did not emigrate at last.

4.2.11. The Hoppner family records from Vinkovci

Another interesting record[34] is from Vinkovci. The marriage of David Hoppner to Klara Blumenstock. The record include:
Isak David Hoppner b. 1888 Toporow, Galicia, the son of Menae Hoppner (b~1870) & Civje Stock (b~1870) Marriage at 29.5.1917 in Vinkovci to Klara Blumenstock b. 1897 Vinkovci Daughter of Heinrich Blumenstock (b.~1860) & Rosalia Adler (b.~1865)

The name of the Zivia family is listed as "Stock" after the second marriage of Zivia's mother (Miriam) to Itzchak Shtok after her first husband passed away (shortly before Zevia was born in 1962), same information coming from another source of the Lipitz Sraga family tree. So, Sara Lipitz and Rosa Kamm had the same grandmother Miriam nee. Baum (Then Verschleisser Then Shtok) from different grandfather. Also in the registration of the marriage of Bruni Hoppner to Lazar Kowalski on 10 Jul 1927 Vinkovci, the name of Zvia family Stock appears.

4.2.12. The family tree from the Lipitz family sied prepared by Micha Netzer, with details on Sara Lipitz mother Rivka Shrage (died July 22, 1958) m. to Emanuel Schrage and Rivka mother (Sara grandmother) Miriam (with “?”) m. to Itzhock Stok's.

4.3. My grandmother husband - Heinz Kamm

4.3.1. Summary

The research on Heinz was at the heart of the Menashe family sied, to light of the many question. The guideline was first to verify whether Heinz Kamm that had been found in Los Angeles by the Jewish Agency in 1962[13,14,29] (Heinz denied any connection with people in Israel), is the man who married Rosa Kamm and immigrated with her to Israel in the 1930s. Then to found out whether Heinz still have extended family living today to explore more information and roots on his family. The information presented here is a summary of the material collected from the archives and documentation of the family members found.
An initial search on the internet free online database found in the state of California Heinz Kamm that was born on 24.5.10 in Germany and died on 28.5.1986 in Los Angeles. A death certificate for this man was order. In the death certificate found that he was married to Sarah Weinstein and worked in Furniture moving before he died. His patents in Germany was: Siegfried Kamm and Henrietta nee. Lachman.

Rosa kept a picture of Heinz from their wedding day in Zagreb. The picture was preserved by Menashe after Rosa died. The picture has never been shown to the family. Behind the picture was the date and place: Zagreb, 29.6.1934.
With the help of the Jewish community in Zagreb, an order of marriage certificate[40] invited (it was necessary to fill a form in the Croatian language and pay a small amount of money in cash only). The certificate arrived by the mail post office.
The date of birth on the marriage certificate was the same 29.6.1934 verifies the fact that this is the same person. It was also discovered from the Stat Archives[14] a record of Rosa and Heinz as a couple immigrated together to Israel at 30.7.1934.

Lili's niece, Rosa (through her daughter and granddaughter on the Internet in 2014), told us that Heinz and Rosa had met when they were in a Jewish agricultural camp for "Aliyah" in Yugoslavia. The purpose of the camp was to train young Jews for agriculture so that they could meet the criteria for immigrating to Israel.
Usually, couples would get married before the trip (not always with the knowledge of their families) in order to increase their chances of confirming their immigration, and after they arrived in Israel they would complete the procedure and divorce.
Until now, the divorce certificate has not been found, although Menashe tell Judy he saw such certificate in the past (the date of divorce was before January 1935).
Heinz's father, Siegfried Kamm, fought and was wounded in the First World War and died in 1933 of his long injury[41]. Heinz's mother, Henrietta nee Lachman, was deported[26] on 15.2.1942 from the city of Beuthen Germany (today Bytom Poland) together with all 1300 Jews of the city directly to the gas chambers of Auschwitz. The Jews of Bytom were the first to be murdered in Auschwitz gas chambers. Heinz had 5 brothers and sisters[42]: the older sister Arna lived in Rio Brazil long before the war. Martin emigrated with his wife and daughter to Ecuador shortly before the war and then to the United States. Harry died with his wife and two children during the Holocaust[29]. Herbert emigrated with his wife and daughter shortly before the war to Argentina. The Little sister Rosa died[41] in Germany at the age of 19 or so.
The study led to a large Kamm Jewish family living in Upper Silesia. also led to a meeting with Heinz's nephew Norberto Kamm, who lives with his family in Argentina. Norberto agreed to give a sample of DNA saliva to perform test that led to a surprising result.

Additional details found[29] on Heinz:

- He was imprisoned in Germany on September 26, 1936
- On 7.11.1936 he entered the Dachau labor camp

- He was transferred from Dachau on October 15, 1938 to Buchenwald
- Departure from Buchenwald on 9.5.1939
- Voyage of the Victoria Ship from Europe to Shanghai 7.8.1939
- On December 7, 1945, registration for a voyage from Shanghai to the United States
- On August 7, 1947 Heinz Kam (a butcher's profession) and Johanna (born Kiel, Germany in 1906), as a couple, emigrated on a ship from Shanghai to the USA
- On 18.6.1952 he filed / received US citizenship in Kansas City, Social Security Number 078-24-8438
- On 27.10.1951, he married in Kansas City with Sarah Weinstein
- He died on 28.5.1986 in LA, California.
- Heinz's wife was Sarah Weinstein (8.11.1915-5.10.2000). They had no children

4.4. My grandfather - Moshe Halutz (Nudelman)

4.4.1. Summary

In March 2015, three DNA kits (from 23AndMe) were ordered to validate the biological family relationship between me and Norberto Kamm who lived in Argentina. Norberto In theory is the Menashe's cousin. Norberto is the son of Herbert Kamm and the nephew of Heinz Kamm. One DNA kit was for me Yair Kamm the son of Menashe and Judy, second for Judy and third for Norberto, who agreed to carry out the test.

After about two months, the surprising results were received. Heinz Kam was not Menashe's biological father. The mismatch was also in the percentage of DNA that was supposed to be around 3% and was obtained at 0% and in the Y chromosome which was supposed to be the same branch and was not. Norberto connection to his grandfather Siegfried Kamm (through common ather cousins) and Yair's connection to Menashe was also "proven" separately in other DNA samples.

After a year and a half of waiting, in December 2016, a new DNA matching was found in 23AndMe database with a man named Avshalom Halutz who performed the test and appeared in my relatives database. That person has about 6% of the DNA shared to Yair pointing to a common grandfather. Also, there is an identical Y chromosome (which indicates that both sides have common father-father). Avshalom (38) is the son of Magen Halutz (64), who is the son of Moshe Halutz (born Moshe Nudelman). In correspondence with Magen and Avshalom information on Moshe Halutz was received.

Moshe Halutz was born in Belarus on June 15, 1903 in the village of Slabodka (17 km southwest of Minsk). He immigrated to Israel without his family in 1928 and changed his surname to Halutz. Lived on Gordon Street in the center of Tel Aviv. In 1941 he married Zivia nee Koch (1921-1994) and they had two sons, Dror (18.7.1942) and Magen (24.5.1952). Moshe died on February 19, 1978 and was buried in the Holon cemetery. Dror has two daughters (from two different womens) Little (1983) and Naama (about 30) each of whom is married with a child. Magen has two sons, Avshalom (1979) and Adam (1986). The boys are not yet married.

Moshe had four sisters and a brother. Benjamin died in World War II and the families of the daughters later immigrated from Russia to Israel in the 90s.

An article about Moshe written by his son in 1950 (Tidhar, D. 1950):
He was born in the village of Slobodka (Minsk region, White Russia), on the 27th of Sivan, 1903, to his father Alter , and to his mother Zipora of the Oritzky family . Received a traditional education. He was active in Hanoar Hatzioni, a group of young Zionists in White Russia since 1917. In that year he participated in founding Hechalutz Hatzair in White Russia. Member of the Party S. (Zionist Socialists). Was arrested in the Soviet Union on 5.2.25, For Zionist action in the underground. He was deported to Petropavlovsk in Siberia. He was permitted to immigrate to Eretz Israel and arrived on 25.10.1928. He worked as an agricultural laborer in Petah Tikva and as a laborer in a shoe factory. He founded the "Association for the Produce of Israel" and for 15 years worked continuously. 36 times he was arrested for war on the country's produce. He was imprisoned for six months. The delegate in the British Parliament, Yeshayahu Wedgewood , asked the Minister of Colonies about his arrest. The shoemakers organized a demonstration in the streets of Tel Aviv for his release.
He was also an active member of the "Legion of the Hebrew Language", a member of the National Center of the Committee for the Control of the Hebrew Language. Throughout the years he has been a member of the Blood Donor Organization and of the Civil Guard. He married Zivia, daughter of Yehuda Koch. From 1936 to 1929, he organized popular trips for new immigrants and tourists around Tel Aviv and Ramat-Gan on behalf of the People's House in Tel Aviv. He was one of the loyal aides of Dr. Yaakov Sela-Blobstein , founder of the Beit Ha'am in Tel Aviv. Today he is the director of the "Publication of the Produce of Israel" newspaper, and editor of the Encyclopedia of the Hebrew Industry in Israel (which began in 1944). After November 29, 1948, he published a picture of Herzl under the title: "If you will it, it is no dream." After the establishment of the state, he dictated it: "We wanted and it is not a legend." He also published in large format the pictures: Jabotinsky, Ben-Gurion and Moshe Sharett. In his editing, a second booklet appeared, "The Competition in Recognition of the Symbols of the State, Industry and Public Institutionalization in Israel" (the first booklet appeared in 1943). Participated in the press, in the weekly: "Hashavua", "Cinema", "Atz Special". He wrote about the prisons in Jaffa and about the war for the country's produce.

Pages 621-623: The imperial princely special privileges for individual Jews to reside and trade in Tyrol extended either to the entire country or were limited to individual towns. A privilege of the first kind was the charter Maximilian I of December 7, 1509 for the Jew Salomon from Bassano, who received permission to trade everywhere in the empire and in the Austrian hereditary lands and also to settle down in the latter, “except in our princely Austria, Steyr and Khärnten ". This privilege was confirmed to Solomon with the same qualification by Emperor Charles V on April 15, 1530 and his son Maggius by the same Emperor on January 18, 1544 and January 18, 1548). Samuel May received from the Archduke Ferdinand II was granted the privilege of staying at the court camp at Innsbruck or wherever it was on June 11, 1578. On July 3, 1584, this charter was extended so that Samuel, together with his children Abraham, Marx and Ferdinand, and his household servants live in Innsbruck and in the County of Tyrol for eight years and, in return for a refund of the fee, be allowed to do business and trade unhindered". The council in Innsbruck was instructed to protect them in it. On May 16, 1593, these freedoms were confirmed for a further five years 3). New confirmations were made for Samuel May on January 3, 1601 and for Abraham May on September 2, 1620). Abraham May received special freedoms from Archduke Leopold V (1619-1632) and Emperor Leopold I in the privileges of November 26, 1630 and July 25, 1667. According to these, he and his household servants were to live in the County of Tyrol for ten years be allowed to live and engage in trade and business, be exempt from wearing the Jewish emblem and from paying the personal tax, and continue to enjoy the previous burial near Weyerburg. On May 29, 1675, Emperor Leopold I granted Abraham's brother-in-law, Jakob Bözel[1]), Hebrew from Mainz, out of consideration for his previous good behavior at his and Abraham's requests, the transfer of those privileges to the same for five years 2). The Jews received privileges to settle in individual towns for Bolzano, Innsbruck, Mori, Neumarkt and Riva di Trento, as well as for the area of Brixen[3]). In Bozen on May 23, 1525, during the peasant unrest, the local Jewish settlement, which was located in the, Erbsen-or Judengasse, was hard pressed and especially the money broker, Seidensticker and pawnbroker Simon, who himself did money transactions with Emperor Charles V. completely plundered 4). Since during these riots the imperial.

Since, after the death of Samuel May and his son Marx, other Jews (especially Schmoll) referred to the personal exemption from customs duty granted to the former, the Upper Austrian government was requested on June 22, 1620, since this privilege had not been granted to this extent, to to levy duties. When Max I's letter of liberty for the Jews in Bolzano was lost, the Jews turned to the Emperor and submitted a copy of it with a request to confirm this liberty letter. The Upper Austrian regiment in Innsbruck, which was asked for its opinion, declared on November 8, 1532, after consultation with some district administrators, such as Georg Freiherr von Firmian and Francis von Kastelalt, for various reasons (particularly in order not to arouse the displeasure of the honorable district - probably with regard to the above-mentioned resolution of the Landtag of January 22, 1520) it was not advisable to grant the Jews the right to settle in Bozen or elsewhere, but applied, since the two representatives of the Jews had been given a promise to this effect by Emperor Max had been agreed to grant this grace to both of them and to issue a document to that effect [1]). In 1551 the Jew Abraham is mentioned in Bozen 2), perhaps the same person who, as a representative of the entire Jewry of the Princely County of Tyrol, lodged the above-mentioned complaint with Archduke Ferdinand II in 1573 about vexatious customs duties at the customs offices in Rovereto and Sacco. On May 27th, 1588, Archduke Ferdinand 3) issued the Jews Joseph, son of Simon and his sons Gerson and Leon (not Aaron) and his sworn son Gerson, a letter of protection and the right to live in Bozen 4). On November 14, 1613, Gerson was dispensed from wearing the Jewish badge. In 1618 the Jews became Grassini, a descendant of the above-mentioned Salomon von Bassano 5), in 1619 the Jew Jeremias Luzzati as a tradesensal) and Elias Moravia as a settlement cook

Pages 147-148: The family of Salomon Bassano, the progenitor of the Innsbruck May, is a good example. In 1509, Maximilian I issued him a far-reaching letter of protection because of damage suffered in the Venetian War. During the ongoing war, Salomon, his "cugnatus" Joseph Consalomon from Asola and Emanuel, son of Samson, were also granted similar letters of protection. Salomon's biography is somewhat more detailed. After supporting Maximilian, he remained in the anti-Venetian camp. In the first four decades of the 16th century, he changed his place of residence between Bassano, Cremona and Riva. For privileges and their confirmation, he had to travel to the monarch – as in 1509 to Bolzano and in 1530 to Mantua. When in 1535 he, like many other Jews in Cremona, came into conflict with the city over pawnbroking, he fled with his son Maggio the Younger, apparently to Riva.
For Maggio, the safe city of Mantua, a Habsburg satellite state, became the long-term center of his life. In Mantua, Charles V renewed Solomon's charter, which he had received from Maximilian, in 1530, and one of Maggio's sisters was already married there in the same year. In 1556, Maggio, as "Mazo de Passon de Mantua", evidently brought goods from Poland over the Brenner Pass, as he was able to show a Latin passport from Queen Catherine, a Habsburg. The archduchess (1533) had spent her early childhood in Tyrol with her siblings. Maggio is then mentioned in Mantua in 1565 as one of five Jewish members of the silk merchants' guild. When the Mantuan Jews gathered at the wedding of Duke Vincenzo in 1581, he is again mentioned as the first and thus oldest of the three “massari” of the Jewish community. The influential Maggio ultimately gave his name in his own way: his (presumably later-born) son was the Innsbrucker Samuel Maggio or May which finally clarifies the origin of the Innsbruck court Jewish family of the same name.

Jews in Innsbruck

In the second half of the 17th century, individual Jews kept coming to Innsbruck, most of whom lived with the May family, whose star was already on the wane. At the beginning of the 18th century, the number of Jewish families in Innsbruck increased: The May family had been resident in Innsbruck since around 1570 and in around 130 years had acquired a permanent position at court and thus also in the city, as well as the right to bury their dead at the Judenbichl. The names Joseph and Jacob Iseron, Isaac and Maier Landauer, Salomon Jacob and Jonathan Uffenheimer in Innsbruck, who were all related to each other. Shortly before 1700 we meet in the files Moyses Pollackh in Innsbruck, who asked, among other things, for burial rights for himself and his family, whereupon he received power from the imperial Resolution of November 23, 1693 Permission was granted that he "Together the wife, children and house are tapping one after the other in the following year in the instead of Ynnsprugg domestic living, trades and kkaufmanschafft against reimbursement of the fee without hindrance [...] may drive over that of the yellow Jew spared, also from that to others inside and foreign jews laid body customs relieved, and the burial near Weyrburg be empowered and should remain.”7 On August 14, 1700, this “privilege” was granted prematurely for a further ten years in response to a petition from the Pollackh family. This put them on an equal footing with the Mays. Around this time, the Uffenheimer may have come to Innsbruck. In 1699 the Bavarian town of Uffenheim had the "privilege" obtained not to have to accept any more Jews. This could have been the reason why Jonathan Uffenheimer and his father moved to Innsbruck. Jonathan Uffenheimer had been married to a daughter of Abraham May since about 1700 and, as mentioned, in the first half of the 18th century the central figure of the Jews in Tyrol and Vorarlberg. The number of Jewish families in Innsbruck had thus almost doubled in a few years, but was still very small.

The end of May in Innsbruck

As late as 1710, the brothers Abraham and Michael May were court Jews and court factors in Innsbruck and sometimes handled large transactions. However, the May trading house lost a lot of money shortly afterwards in unfortunate transactions and also had bad luck with its business partners. Abraham May, who was already heavily in debt at the time, tried his hand at being an army supplier in 1719/20 together with his son-in-law Jonathan Uffenheimer. They procured uniforms for a Tyrolean battalion that was moving to Italy. However, the delivery was of insufficient quality, and a series of lawsuits followed, everyone against everyone eventually a lawsuit between Abraham May and his Innsbruck landlord Elisabeth Schlappin in 1723 over an excessive rent of 87 guilders for his house. Michael May, Abraham's brother, the later Electorate of the Palatinate's chief militia and court factor, born around 1680, was also involved in a variety of business activities: in 1712 he had exchange transactions in Frankfurt, and in 1713 Michael May, "court Jew of Innsbruck", delivered flour and grains to the "Hailing salt export, also Sudtweesen in Reichenhall and Traunstein". In 1716 he delivered over 806 hundredweights of "salt" to the court for almost 20,000 guilders, and a year later 400 hundredweights “Pulfer” to Vienna. In 1719, his cash advances to the emperor amounted to 250,000 guilders. One year later, together with Lemle Moses, the Electorate of the Palatinate’s chief militia factor, he lent the Electorate of the Palatinate, Karl Philipp, 500,000 guilders. As Michael May was often absent from Innsbruck, in 1714 he took his former clerk Jakob Iseron as a partner. This young, ambitious man borrowed large sums from a Jewish consortium and invested in loss-making businesses. The bills of exchange issued in return bore the stolen seal and the forged signature of Michael May. Jakob Iseron ended up in prison, and the bills of exchange were sued. Other suppliers also took notice and filed claims. Michael May went bankrupt. The list of his creditors includes Gerson Daniel Oppenheimer from Pfersee near Augsburg with around 24,000 guilders and the brothers Maier and Isak Landauer with 9,000 guilders. The mayor of Innsbruck threatened him with imprisonment. The Landauer brothers, his former partners, tried all kinds of tricks to get their money. Michael May even suspected them of inciting violence after he was beaten down on the street by the toll collector Johann Franz von Goldegg. As late as the mid-1720s, Michael and Abraham May were still referred to as “court Jews”; however, at this point at the latest, the Uffenheimer family succeeded the May family: Jonathan Uffenheimer was the son-in-law of Abraham May, who died around 1726. Jonathan Uffenheimer remained the dominant Jewish personality in the country for the next 30 years, even though he had moved to Hohenems in 1725. Michael May and his sons also left their mark in Mannheim and Frankfurt: The Jewish Museum of the City of Frankfurt contains an illustrated manuscript by Jakob ben Michael May Segal by 1731, the so-called Frankfurt Pesach Haggadah.

Jakob ben Michael May Segal from Innsbruck was the scribe and illuminator of this richly decorated parchment manuscript with 67 colored miniatures. He was a son of Michael May and moved to the Judengasse in Frankfurt in the first third of the 18th century. From 1733 there is another written testimony from the May family that has survived to this day: In July 1954 the Jewish Chronicle reported the sale of a valuable Hebrew manuscript from Innsbruck from 1733 to Charles Sawyer Ltd at Christie's. The original owner of this document was Gabriel, another son of Michael May, who is considered to be the last Jewish May living in Innsbruck - some family members had converted. His father Michael had moved to Mannheim with his family at the end of the 1720s to escape the lawsuits. There he founded a Jewish school around 1730, the Michael May'sche Klaus, which was, however, closed again in 1765 In Mannheim, Michael May and his son Lazarus were important court factors under the Electors Johann Wilhelm and Karl Philipp.35 In the Electorate of the Palatinate court calendar of 1734, Michael May is listed as the senior court and militia factor and is the first of the eight court factors listed. His lifestyle is evidenced by the fact that he died in Schlangebad in 1737 while he was there for a cure. With the death of the two brothers, the May trading house in Innsbruck also ceased to exist.

7.1.3. Gretl Köfler, Zur Geschichte der Juden in Tirol, II. Teil: Das Handelshaus May in Innsbruck, in: Das Fenster, Heft 27, Winter 1980, 2733–2735, hier 2734.

For five generations, the May trading house belonged to the large group of court factors or court Jews, who from the second half of the 16th century, thanks to their closeness to the prince, anaged to gain wealth and influence. In this way they resemble the large German court Jewish families Wertheimer, Oppenheimer or Seligmann. In Tyrol it was Archduke Ferdinand II (1529-1595) whose enormous financial needs for a princely court and extensive collecting activities during his 30-year reign were not covered either by the princely income from the salt works and the mines or by customs duties and taxes taxes could be covered. He was constantly on the lookout for potent financiers. Since important trade routes led through Tyrol, it made sense to demand appropriate taxes from the various trading companies and to improve the state treasury.

The May trading house began its ascent with Samuel May, who came to Innsbruck in the entourage of Archduke Ferdinand. Business relationships may have existed before that, as Samuel May is mentioned as early as 1569 in connection with Jews from Prague and Venice because of a Jewish toll from the Hall Salt Office. In any case, from the 1570s he ran a shop in the Hofburg, where not only court servants frequented, but where everyone could stock up on good and inexpensive goods. The Innsbruck dealers and the municipality complained about the competition, and the shop was also broken into and looted. A conflict that lasted for more than 150 years began between the municipality, the Innsbruck government, the sovereign and the trading house. The municipality confronted Samuel May about his unauthorized stay in Innsbruck. He defended himself with orders from Archduke Ferdinand. He still gets money from the Hofkammer and works at the Bozner and Haller markets. Archduke Ferdinand granted him a protective privilege in 1578, which was repeatedly confirmed with modifications by the Tyrolean sovereigns until 1717. This privilege allowed Samuel May to trade in the Archduke's dominions, but not in the other Austrian lands.

In 1601 they were exempted from the body toll, which was revoked on a case-by-case basis, and in 1613 from wearing the Jewish symbol. The unwanted newcomers had problems with the housing search, because according to the Tyrolean state regulations, the Jews were not allowed to acquire land. In 1588, Samuel May bought the house at Pickentor (now Seilergasse 16) in which he had been renting for a long time. The city of Innsbruck and the government were against it, but Archduke Ferdinand II approved the sale. Samuel May took over the debts of the seller Paul Schüestl and promised to pay all taxes. He received the house for his lifetime or as long as he possessed the royal privileges.' He offered board and lodging to Jews passing through, since they were forbidden to stay with Christians. The Jews from Tyrol and the foothills had to repeatedly go to the government in Innsbruck for confirmation of privileges, legal transactions and commercial agendas. They tried to limit the stays to three days, otherwise the guest and the landlord faced penalties. May's house soon became too small, and years of bureaucratic tug-of-war for more living space began. In 1666 the May family lived in four houses," there was also a rented apartment in Bozen. Three years later, the numerous family members were to move into the houses they lived in Evict Christians and move into one apartment, which was obviously not followed. In 1723 there was a rent lawsuit for one of the houses." The landlady Elisabeth Schlappin sued Abraham May for an increase in rent from 50 guilders to 87 guilders listed the improvements made: 40 window sashes with glass panes and frames, five doors, a paved kitchen floor, five floors on the ground floor, parlor paneling, several ovens and stables.He considered the sum demanded to be extortionate, since there were far better houses for 30 guilders "But he was dependent on the tenement house, because the number of houses inhabited by Jews should not be increased. Since the number of resident Jews was increasing despite all the bans, there were considerations of settling them in a ghetto." Residence bans for Jews passing through were issued again and again, but not checked. The Jewish families were subject to court law, they always resisted municipal or government regulations, and the processes dragged on forever.

Over the years, a community formed around the May family, which also took on social responsibility. Personal ties were strengthened by a targeted marriage policy. Jewish employees founded their own companies and stayed in touch with their former employers. The sources show that the parishioners were at home in three languages: Hebrew, German and Italian. In the middle of the 17th century there are indications of a Jewish schoolmaster, a butcher, also a synagogue and a rabbi from the May family financial difficulties. For example, Abraham May was to ensure that the Jews who lived with him did not carry weapons."

Because of the different religious rituals, there were now and then conflicts between Jews and Christians, which could also degenerate into acts of violence: mocking remarks" and lack of respect during the Corpus Christi processions" on the part of the former, complaints about slaughter, about forbidden "conventicula and synagog" from the latter." Discussions continued about the employment of Christian, especially female, servants in Jewish households, which was a thorn in the side of the government." Sexual relations between Jews and Christian women were severely punished, the illegitimate children remained in the care of the mothers, who must have fathers. paid maintenance, sometimes they ended up in prison, conversions were not uncommon, one case also affected the family

In 1660, Samuel, one of Abraham May's sons, was baptized and henceforth called himself Johann Ferdinand. The Abbot of Stams took over his education, and the monastery kept the interest on a loan granted by his father as an education allowance. Three years later, the convert demanded his inheritance on the grounds that Jewish children who had become Christians could claim their share of the inheritance. After a lengthy tug-of-war, a settlement was reached and the son received a hefty sum of 3,450 guilders from various offices." His descendants lived in Innsbruck until the second half of the 20th century.

The trading house flourished. The company's founder, Samuel (died 1607), worked primarily as a purveyor to the court. He supplied silks, velvets, chasubles, spices, cotton, inkware, books, clocks, parchment, chairs, furs, even Dutch tapestries, and he generously repaid the demands. Between 1574 and 1595, the year Archduke Ferdinand II died, the trading house delivered goods to the value of around 82,000 guilders, about half of which was paid for, either by the Court Chamber or through the income from various Tyrolean customs offices. Samuel's son Moise founded his own company in Venice, while his brother Marx (died 1617) ran the business in Innsbruck. The business relationship with the Giovanelli family lasted from 1610 to 1620, which ended in strife," until 1671 the remaining amount of 2,892 guilders was litigated. Short-term cooperation existed in the 18th century with Jacob Iseron and with Jonathan Uffenheimer, who also had family relationships. The collaboration with Jacob Iseron was not happy either, the partner worked dubiously, and various banking transactions went wrong."

After the Tyrolean line of the House of Habsburg died out in 1665, the title "court supplier" was lost. Instead, Michael May, the great-grandson of the company founder, called himself "Chur-Palatinate court and senior militia factor". The company made good money in long-distance trade between the Austrian foothills and northern Italy. The Bolzano markets were regularly visited, where Gedeon May worked briefly as a Sensal." Another source of income was pawnbroking, accompanied by frequent complaints that the pledged items were being sold too quickly and too cheaply. Trading in gold, silver and lead for various mints was also a tricky line of business, which repeatedly brought complaints from the dealers about dubious purchases. In addition to the royal court, buyers of luxury goods were the Tyrolean aristocracy. A decree by the Bolzano city judge pointed out that the young aristocrats got into serious debt because of such luxury goods. Therefore, a number of lawsuits were pending."" although the amount sued for is not always given: 1621 claims against the Count of Zollern, 1625 against Michael von Altmannshausen 157 guilders, 1627 against Johann Jacob Kohler 3,500 guilders, the sum is 1645 still not paid, 1627 to Engelhard von Ros, in the same year to Lazarius von Spaur 2,000 guilders, 1630 to Maximilian and Adam Geizkofler, the heirs after Michael Freiherr von Wolkenstein, 9,000 guilders, 1631 to Freiherr von Spaur 6,000 guilders, was not paid in 1654, until then 400 guilders interest accrued, 1633 to Nicolaus Füger 8,000 guilders, 1644 to the Counts of Hohenems 17,000 guilders, 1647 to Carl Raitner from the Wolkenstein regiment 51,000 guilders, 1648 to Georg Fugger 5,525 guilders. The necessary loans are obtained through connections with other court Jews. Despite the pledging of real estate or customs revenue, repayment of the loans granted was uncertain; the outstanding amount including interest was not always repaid. In return, credit default insurance was taken out as security. Because of the gradual deterioration of coins, merchants did not settle their accounts with each other in cash; bills of exchange and checks became the usual means of payment. The securities were passed on in lieu of payment. The trading house May made good use of it. Information about the interest rate varies. They range from ten to 50 percent. The most pleasant way of getting rid of one's troublesome creditors was to expel them from the country. In 1580, Israel Jud and his companions in Telvan complained about the usury orders within three months and asked for an extension of time or at least help in collecting their debts. The government encouraged debt collection through Christian procurators, but without the usurious interest rates of up to 40 percent, Sigmund Freiherr von Welsperg und Primör, the magistrate of Telvan, declared that the Jews were only allowed to take 20 percent interest and only movable property of the Christians as a pledge. Christians, on the other hand, take lying goods as collateral and also demand 20 percent. This would drive the poor people off the land. The Telvan magistrate asked that this practice be stopped among Jews and Christians. As early as 1554, a commission examined the allegations of usurious interest and found them to be not too high at ten to 15 percent; however, the assumption was made that a certain sum would also be added to the main debt.

Samuel May died around 1607, his sons Marx in Innsbruck and Moise in Venice could not agree on their father's will. Marx inherited the title of "real court merchant" and the privileges of his father; he died around 1619. His two sons Abraham and Samuel continued the inheritance disputes, on the one hand with Moise's descendants, "on the other hand against each other, since the younger felt disadvantaged in the will." These disputes were enriched by the alimony process with Gentila Donati, the second wife of her deceased father." Ultimately, the disputes within the family dragged on for three generations before they petered out in the first third of the 18th century.

With the beginning of the War of the Spanish Succession, the brothers Abraham and Michael entered the army supplies business with Jacob Iseron. They supplied uniforms to various regiments, but some of the supplies were of poor quality." Jacob Iseron landed other deals in the name of Michael May, but he worked with dubious methods, which resulted in a rat tail of lawsuits." Jacob Iseron ended up in prison, Michael May went bankrupt in 1717." At that time he already bore the title of "Chur-Palatinate senior militia and court factor", which points to business connections in the Palatinate. He escaped the flood of lawsuits by moving to Mannheim, where he died between 1735 and 1737 as the last member of the May trading house.

7.1.4. An article in the local newspaper - Official Gazette of the State Capital Innsbruck 4, 1938, Issue 6, p. 5f. (translated from German to English)

Since the annexation of Judaism continues actively in Germany-Austria as well, the question arises. How was it once in Tyrol And especially in Innsbruck. The best overview so far has probably been given by E. 3. Scherer in his book "The Conditions The Laws of the Jews in the German-Austrian States" published in 1901, because this book is probably familiar Only for a few people, it is based on the files from the city archives (Tar 60/1706) in several smaller essays, the way in which Judaism participated in the life of the city of Innsbruck and how the judge and the citizens saw it. It should be noted that some files are older from 1581 and 1682 about the stay of the Jews in Innsbruck, who are listed in the old archive register, have been absent for many years. It is important to note that since their first appearance in Tyrol around the year 1300, the Jews have become famous again and again, but never won of great importance. The number of Jews who settled was always modest. In the 18th century - it is said that only two families lived in Bolzano and two in Innsbruck. In the 1785 Bullock census, only eight (1) Jews are given. J. J. Steffler writes in Topography The well-known of Tyrol and Vorarlberg (1 129) in 1847: the population of Tyrol and Vorarlberg confesses to the Catholic religion. But there Jews are also tolerated, i.e. 92 families in Hohenmes in Borarlberg. 7 in Innsbruck and one family in Bolzano, and that is not allowed Go beyond the numbers. In Innsbruck, a respectable family played the most important role since the 16th century - it was called In the name of Magius (Maggio, May), the son of the Jew Salomon of Bassano. This Salomon had already received approval from Maximilian 1 in 1509 to trade anywhere in the empire and settle anywhere except in the principalities of Deftreich, Stent and Renton. This certificate was approved on by Charles V in 1530 and later again to the same name Maggios in 1544 and 1548 around this time Magius was probably the first of the May family to settle in Innsbruck. On June 11, 1578, Samuel May received approval Brivilgium from Archduke Ferdinand II to stay in the court camp in Innsbruck. A few years later (1582), according to Rabbi Fishnaler's Chronicle of Innsbruck (IV.83), he purchased a house (Seilergaffe No. 16) for 580 guilders. According to a book The taxes from 1591, Samuel May Yod from the egg building by Schießtl Baul bought from Steuffen Baulen and the heirs of Hans Differtkirchen had to pay two marks for five letters as a surprise. The Jews also owned the nearby cemetery Weirburg then. A document from 1598 says that the Jews, who lived in different places, would call him a hero at any time since time immemorial. The Jews were always worried about extending their residence permit, which is usually only given for a few years (5 or 8). That the May family gets along with it is easier to do, because he was very much in favor of these. needed and in 1630 it already was He has in his hands a very beautiful series of princely letters of grace. The letter of grace of Archduke Leopold V of November 26 1630 to his servants, the loyal court merchants brothers Abraham and Shmuel May, as the remaining descendants of Maggio May, was given Find "Hebrews" in more detail. At first the sovereign reminds us of the various privileges according to which these Jews were allowed to stay in Innsbruck for a certain period of time with all their belongings and household goods and to trade here for a fee. So a special permit from the year is mentioned 1613, according to which all Jews living here, their servants and household members, not only have to wear the yellow Jewish symbol, but The body requirement imposed on local Jews and other foreigners is also not to blame. But a full fine exemption was forced. Runmore explains that the brothers Avraham and Samuel May not only humbly asked to extend their residence permit and confirmation of their freedoms, but also asked The title "faithful" and the title "grace" Archduke Leopold then considered the faithful service of the May family, who are Shewed both the purchase and presentation of all kinds of goods, and confirmed the old liberties and granted further residence for several years. In addition, He also gave permission to the merchants of the court and his servants to write and give them the title "faithful of our churches". Then you are warned Jews to behave properly, pay annual taxes and trade taxes, use bargains when purchasing cash and answer questions of government officials. But all the authorities and especially the mayor and council of the city of Innsbruck should protect the Jews.

In Bolzano, a central trade fair location on the important north-south route over the Alps and until 1462 or 1531 territorial town of the bishops from Trento, one could access the Abilities and contacts of Jews in the related to long-distance trade don't give up. In the Venetian War (1509-1516) Maximilian I and others also by Bassano, Asolo and Belluno. The Jewish Merchant Solomon and his uncle Aser had thereby for delivered Provisions and credits to the always in Kaiser in need of money accounts receivable. Maximilian allowed of the family in return, themselves in the Rich, especially in the county Tyrol and specifically in the city Bolzano to settle down at home. There-with he granted her decisive freedoms in trade and customs exemptions and escort rights. This privileges received today the prelude to the history of the Maggio family in Bolzano. It is noteworthy that in the text of Privileges of the name Solomon from Bassano also in Hebrew letters Written Salmin jud mBasson becomes. Also, there is a whole series of Hebrew marginal notes in very small letters. Among the privileges that the from 1509 in Bolzano based Maggio Bassano in the form of letters of liberty belonged to the express physical exemption from wearing the dis-criminal yellow cloth rings on the robe. Maximilian allowed this to Salomon Maggio and his uncle Aser. They were allowed to move around in Welsh and German lands without this sign, which was otherwise prescribed to Jews as a punishment. In another privilege of Maximilian dated March 1, 1516, Emanuel, son of the deceased Samson (probably mistaken for Salomon), is exempted from wearing the ring sign free. Wearing the yellow Jewish ring was therefore the norm. This was codified with a printed general mandate dated August 1, 1551, in which King Ferdinand I prescribed the Jews to wear this symbol. If there were three violations, the punishment was permanent expulsion from the country. THE JEWS FROM BASSANO RESIDENT IN BOLZANO HAVE THE NAME MAGGIO The family originating from Bassano, by the Letter of Liberty of 1509 came to Bolzano for Salomon, shared the family name Maggio for the firsttime with Salomon's son Emanuel. It can be assumed that Marx and Simon Emmanuel's sons were Simon Maggio was married to Sara, who went public several times after her husband's death. In 1554 the Prince of Trent wanted created Cristoforo Madruzzo on request the Innsbruck government the Jews expel from Riva. In this regard, should also expelled the Jews from Bolzano become. Thereupon Sara requested for freedom, continue in Bolzano to be allowed to stay and the two Apartments (our two apartments), those of her brother-in-law Marx and those her deceased husband Simon, with her son Joseph to keep may. However, the government advised the sovereign, the Jews out to evict the city. The appointment for the expulsion of Sara was pushed until you finally 1565 was allowed, along with her son Joseph and the servants to stay in Bolzano. For Sarah had themselves etc. the Duchess of Mantua, the sister of Archduke Ferdinand II., used. Also the king of Bohemia, Maximilian II, and his Sister Barbara, the Duchess of Ferrara, stepped in for Sara and others Jews known to them. Dementia speaking, the country therefore the city authority of Saras right to stay. One expected from Sara however, that they are no other Jews shelter grant. In such a case would they lose their liberation. This was a sensitive limitation, there just for the long distance traders and those in transit Jews the accommodation with their own genes for reasons of faith and the kosher food was very important. It is generally assumed that the Maggio from Bozen were related to the Jewish purveyor family May from Innsbruck. The last representative living in Bolzano ter of Maggio was Sara's great-grandson, Grandson of Joseph, Gerson Maggios son Lieberman. Like his ancestor he was also in the pawn shop and engaged in banking. Two of his four sisters were forcibly baptized as children. Finally, in 1627, the Bolzano Jews were told not to keep any Christian servants or wet nurses. ten. Liebermann undertook one personal push against the dis-criminal restrictions, yes he was threatened with punishment if he the yellow Jewish ring on his chest wouldn't wear. In the grounds tion, it was also stated that he thereby from acts of violence by others be protected. Liebermann also came in other connection with the law in conflict: in 1625 he had tharina, an unmarried Christian Sterzing, a child. The Innsbruckers Kammer settled the case with the Hinweis auf simple fornication, also an ordinary case of un-breeding, which like similar cases none had serious consequences. After all, von Liebermann is still there known that he was concerned about his frail father Gerson. This was his own statement according to his son, he is my food to myself are now looking for use. 1629 Liebermann Maggio will be one last Mentioned once and now as called sick. This is at the same time the last mention of the last representative of the Maggio family, the since 1509, i.e. for 120 years, in Bolzano was based. your privileges went under Archduke Leopold in 1629 V. directly to the Jewish family Moravia about.

The town of Cremona addresses a petition to the Emperor. The Cremona charter of privileges regarding lending by Jewish bankers stipulates that bankers are to insure the pawns deposited with them by the borrowers. A Jewish banker recently decamped from Cremona taking many pawns with him, to the detriment of the residents, since the pawns were not insured. An appeal to ountess Lodrone and Giovan Angelo Ritio, the officials in charge of the Jews, has brought no response. Now Solomon and Mazzo have fled, taking with them pawns valued at about 10.000 ducats. The town asks that orders be issued to the competent officials mentioned above to ensure the safety of the pawns held by Jewish bankers. Attached is an excerpt from the town's charter of privileges stipulating that only Jews in possession of a permit from the town authorities are allowed to engage in money- lending, and they must supply guarantees of the safety of the pawns.

1. On 27 August 1535, at the request of the Cremona representative Giorgio Oldoini, the podestà of the town orders all the Jews of Cremona to appear before the magistrate on pain of a fine of 100 gold scudi payable to the ducal treasury. The Jews must give a guarantee that they will observe the conditions governing the holding and returning of pawns, set out in the charter granted to the town by the Duke of Milan. Those summoned are: Isaac: Maius the elder; Maius the younger; Moses; Solomon: Clemente, son of Moses: Clemente, who lives in the San Donato quarter; and a widow. The order is given by means of a notice communicated to Isaac de Tizano and posted in the synagogue located in the San Nicola quarter.
2. Several Jewish money-lenders of Cremona, among them Solomon and Mazzo, have left the town taking with them all the pawns they were holding. The commune appealed first to the Countess of Lodrone and Gio. Angelo Ritio, the officials in charge of the Jews, and then to the governor of Milan, Antonio Leyva. The commune is requesting the implementation of article 7 of the charter granted by the Duke of Milan to the town on 10 August 1530, which stipulates that the Jews are required to provide a guarantee that they will keep and return pawns. Now, at the instigation of the town representative Gio. Carlo Zoco, on 26 February 1535, the magistrate of Cremona summons all the Jews of Cremona with a notice communicated to Isaac de Tizano and posted in the synagogue located in the San Nicola quarter. Another summons of 6 March 1535 is received by the following Jews: Marius the elder, living in the Santa Sofia quarter; Moses; Clemente. the son of Moses, living in the San Donato quarter; a widow, known as the mother of Todeschino, living in the San Bartolomeo quarter: Moses, living in the San Vito quarter; Leone, living in the Santa Elena quarter, and Simon, living in the San Leonardo quarter. The docu- ment reports on the letter of Emperor Charles V, dated 3 March 1536, ordering the magistrate of Cremona to see to the observance of the charter which the late Francesco Sforza, Duke of Milan, granted the town, on the basis of the letters sent by the senators of the town itself.

3. The Jews of Cremona have presented a petition to Charles V asking him to intervene in the dispute of the Cremona commune with Isaac de Tizano, Madio de Belono, Clemente de Jacob and Michaela de Volpino who are jointly owners of the loan bank granted them for eight years by the late Duke of Milan, with the confirmation of the Senate. The commune, as a result of the removal of pawns by a number of Jews, demands that the charter which the late Duke granted the town should apply to the Jews as well. Now on 20 March 1535 Madio, in the name of all the Jews, presents the Duke's letters to the magistrate of Cremona with the surety of Nicola de Piattis, and the official sum- mons for the following day four deputies of the commune, the attorney Giorgio Oldoino, representing the town, and the Jews, in order to settle the dispute. The document reports on the letter from Emperor Charles V, dated 17 March 1536, in which, complying with the petition of the Jews, he intervenes in their favour with the magistrate of Cremona.

4. On 17 May 1536 the senate of Milan accedes to the request of the Cremona senators and approves article 7 of the charter granted to the town on 10 August 1530 by the Duke of Milan, whereby the Jews have to provide a guarantee for the pawns they hold.

5. At the instigation of Gio. Maria Clarasco, representative of Cremona, on 5 August 1538 the magistrate of the town summons the following to give surety for pawns: Isaac de Tizano and Macius de Belono, both residents of the Santa Sofia quarter: Clemente, son of Moise de Piscarolo, living in the Cantone San Nicola; Clemente de Jacob, living in the San Donato quarter; and Michaela de Udeno, living in the San Leonardo quarter. Following summonses of 19 August and 2 September, on 3 September the magistrate summons Isaac de Tizano to settle the dispute on behalf of all the Jews.

6. On 7 September another meeting is called to settle the question of the surety the Jews are to provide.
